A JASON KING FAVORITE! MK Ultra

I chose this strain to start the new colour for several reasons. Most importantly, it is absolutely amazing. Anyone familiar with the legendary "OG Kush" strain from Southern California knows what I am talking about.

This herb goes for as much as $800 a pound in LA. It consistently fetches more than any other strain on the market. In fact, I've heard of single clones going for an astounding and insulting $20,000. Why? It's the flavor.

While the high is also fantastic, the flavor of OG Kush is absolutely brilliant. It's that sour, tangy, electrified, petrol flavor that has turned many a stoner into a "OG Kush FIEND" in the SoCal area.

OG Kush is most likely closely related to the legendary Chem/Dawg strain from Colorado. Interestingly, while the strain is called a Kush, it has more of a sativa growth pattern. She is tricky to grow, takes her sweet time, and the harvest is modestly sized at best. All these reasons partly explain the ridiculously high price for the herb, although it's mostly greed.

Adam, top breeder at THSeeds, was able to obtain the OG Kush clone, which he then crossed with a very special Gen cross that he works with. The results are truly impressive.

The flavor is all there, yet the plant is easier to grow, considerably quicker (6 weeks flowering), and the harvest size has also been brought up to a respectable 350 grams p.s.m. Kudos to THSeeds for making this awesome and often hoarded strain available to the masses for a fair price.
